Statement of intent - CANDIDATE TO IDEAS VICE-PRESIDENCY

As a citizen of Chiapas, our cosmovision of life transforms us in observers of the planet. In this unstable world, our openness reiterates how important and how noble is hospitality highlighting the importance of cultural capital and human relationships. Both have enriched my vision and allowed me to dream, explore, and plan collaboratively.

My journey as an evaluator started back in 2010, when different requirements for the local governments were implemented by the National authorities in order to compile developmental results of different public programs in the previous National Development Objectives in Mexico. All aligned with the United Nations training and support. Since then, I haven't look back, and I have taken every opportunity to get trained, collaborate or participate at regional, national, and international networks of evaluation (ReLAC, ACEVAL, IDEAS, CLEAR), or at the Community of Practice on Managing for Development Results.

I got the opportunity to attend the IPDET program at Carleton University back in 2013, and was invited to IDEAS for one year 2013-2014. I came back in 2017 as a life member, and since then I have engaged at national efforts in ACEVAL Mexico (2016), always aligning our efforts with the global trends in the sector. As mentioned with other colleagues and evaluators, if elected as IDEAS Vice-President I intend to be open for dialogue first among board members, with the primary responsibility of collaborating with the President on guidance to the Board and to all the members.

In addition, as a connector and an amplifier, I would like to contribute with the mission of IDEAS, fostering the bridges between experienced evaluators and the new generation of evaluators. Also, I would like to integrate innovative perspectives on organizational processes and leadership tools to co-build a sustainable global community.

Our network has been impacting different sectors and institutions around the world. Let's continue making the difference and driving change, listening to local perspectives to be incorporated at the international debates, always being aware of the external environment where feedback is a key element for our collective performance.
