4. Respect for rights and responsibilities

In all our approaches, communications and deliverables, we commit to respecting privacy, equity, gender equality, minorities and indigenous peoples, the dignity of people and environmental integrity...

5. Support for professionalization and capacity development

We advocate a transformational change of evaluation itself. We will support efforts to bring knowledge and capacities to commissioners, evaluators, development partners and the diversity of stakeholders who can and do contribute to the practice of development evaluation throughout the world. We support the development of an international evaluation academy...

10. The challenge ahead

The discourse on evaluation for transformational change is challenging for evaluators working in systems, contexts and circumstances that are not yet open to or sufficiently enabled to commit to transformational evaluation, and challenging for commissioners, users and stakeholders. We continue to discuss and to deepen our understanding of the changes required for evaluation to contribute to tackling the crucial problems of our time.
